House Committee On Agriculture To Make Alterations In Inspection Law.

TO SUBMIT CHANGES TO BE MADE

Other Washington News Of Importance--Presidential Appointments--Workings Of The Senate And The House.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, D. C., June 18.—The house committee on agriculture today authorized Chairman Wadsworth and Rep. Brooks of Colorado to amend the meat inspection provision in the agricultural bill to meet the views of President Roosevelt, after which the measure will be submitted to the President by Speaker Cannon. It is stated that the committee's suggestions will be accepted if the wishes of the committee are complied with. The discussion today made it plain there was no objection to eliminating the court review provision as suggested by the President; also that he wishes that the civil service commission should be empowered to place the date of manufacture on the label and to the inserting of the words "In Judgment of the Secretary of Agriculture," thus making the secretary the final authority regarding the measure. There was some criticism as to the method to be employed in handling the measure, as no republican members who presented the minority views, nor any democratic members of the committee are to have anything to do with the redrafting of the substitute bill.

The presidential nominations today were: Ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Turkey—John G. A. Leishman, Pennsylvania; to be placed on retired list of army with rank of brigadier-general—Col. Samuel A. Whitall. The senate today decided to insist upon its amendments to the naval appropriation bill and to ask for a further conference with the house. In the house Bartlett of Georgia announced the death of his late colleague, Rufus Lester, and offered the usual resolutions which were agreed to and the house adjourned.

CAUGHT TODDLER FROM UNDER CAR

HENRY SCOTT SAVED TWO-YEAR- OLD OF CHAS. LOGERMAN.

FROM A TERRIBLE DEATH

Heroic Deed Performed Saturday Afternoon as Ball-Players Were Returning From Park.

Henry Scott, employed as foreman at the alkali, tobacco, warehouse, saved the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Logerman of 4 Beloit avenue from a terrible death under the street-car wheels late Saturday afternoon. He was on the forward platform of the car which was bringing two score passengers from the Athletic park, where they had been playing baseball. As the vehicle was climbing the Beloit avenue hill at a fair rate of speed the child was playing on the track. She started to run away, but became frightened and bewildered and turned toward the oncoming danger. Scott jumped from the steps and dashed forward. He caught the toddler up and carried her off the rails as the car, with brakes set, passed. The act was heroic and Scott not only received the commendations of his fellow passengers, but will have the everlasting thanks of the parents. The child's name is Dorothy and will be two years of age next month.

OPERATED ON EUNSON TRAIN STUDENTS FOR SKULL FRACTURE

Dr. Sutherland Removed Shattered Fragments of Bone and Lifted Depressed Portions.

Charles Eunson, the second ward carpenter who received such a severe beating on Milwaukee street Friday evening, was operated upon Saturday afternoon by Drs. Q. O. Sutherland, Fred. Sutherland, and Charles Sutherland. The physicians found an extensive comminuted skull fracture (the bone being broken into a number of small fragments). The loose pieces were extracted and the depressed fragments which formed the rim of the aperture were lifted up so that they might not press upon the brain. It was not found necessary to insert a metal plate. The patient was reported today noon to be getting along nicely.

FOR NEWSPAPERS

STATE UNIVERSITY CRIES NEW COURSE OF STUDY.

JOURNAL IS PRINTED DAILY

Milton Junction. Roy, Treasurer of Press-Club—Membership Numbers More Than Fifty.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 16.—The training of students for newspaper work is a new field of activity which the University of Wisconsin has entered upon during the past year, and which is to be developed and extended next year. While there have always been a number of students in the university preparing for journalistic work, no particular provision has been made for giving them practical training in the details of newspaper work until the beginning of the present year. At that time a course in newspaper writing was offered in the English department, and was elected by some thirty students interested in journalism. As a result of the enthusiasm manifested by the students in this new work, a University Press club was organized with a membership of fifty. For next year a four years' course has been outlined for students preparing themselves for a journalistic career.

Gives Practical Training.

The course in newspaper writing offered this year by Professor Willard G. Bleyer, who has had experience in newspaper work, has been designed to give the students practical training in reporting. The members of the class have been assigned to "cover" local events of various kinds and have turned in the reports to the instructor to the editor and criticized. The students have been given practice in reporting everything from football games to political speeches, and from weddings to fires. The members of the class were required to interview students, members of the faculty and alumni on such timely topics as the football situation and the honor system at Wisconsin, and to prepare these interviews for publication.

The news reports of interest were published from time to time in the Daily Cardinal and the local papers. The course also included the preparation of special articles on interesting subjects connected with university life, suitable for publication in magazine sections of newspapers. After the best of these "feature stories" had been criticized and revised the students submitted them to the editors of daily papers of the state, and a number of them were published, some with illustrations made from photographs secured by the student reporters. By these means all the aspiring student journalists were able to see some of their best work in print.

Students Edit Newspaper.

In order to give the students insight into the workings of a newspaper office, the class was organized as a staff of a daily newspaper in the fall, and prepared for publication a four page paper with ten columns of reading matter. One of the students acting as city editor, made the assignments on the preceding day, and the reporters appeared at the office with the material for their "stories."

77 SCHOOL BOYS OUT IN BEET FIELDS

Half the Crop Already Bunched and Thinned—Outlook Excellent— Prof. Wool Samples the Soil.

E. Sebbelow, head agriculturist of the Rock County Sugar Co., states that he has been over the entire territory tributary to the local factory and that the outlook for the crop is very favorable. There is a good stand of beets; over half of them have been bunched and thinned and it is expected that this work in the remaining area will be completed within ten or twelve days. The grade schools closed Friday and 77 boys from Janesville in addition to the Belgians and Russians were in the fields Saturday. Another group of them went to work early this morning. The grower who is fortunate enough to possess a roller is advised to use it right after the bunching and thinning and cultivate as soon thereafter as possible. Prof. Wool of the experiment station at Madison was in this vicinity Thursday and drove through the beet-raising section of the country. From farms where the roots had been grown for two or three years past he took samples of the soil for the purpose of examining its quality and determining which commercial fertilizers can be used to the best advantage. In this there is a possible beginning of a soil survey of the whole southern portion of Wisconsin.

DRAFTS BLEW FROM POCKET INTO RIVER

One Was Recovered by Aid of Row- boat, But Other Is Lost—Frank Dunkley the Unfortunate One.

As he was going over the north side of the Milwaukee street bridge from the Janesville Carriage Company's office, where he is employed as bookkeeper, to a west side bank, Frank Dunkley lost two bank drafts in the river, a sudden gust of wind blowing his coat open and dislodging them from his inner pocket. With all haste he secured a rowboat at the Cafe feed store on Park street. One large draft was recovered, but another for twenty dollars had not been found up till two o'clock. Both were seen floating a foot below the surface near the Court street bridge, but efforts to rescue them with poles were unavailing.

WAS WRITHING IN CONVULSIONS IN A VACANT LOT

Ernest Diebler, Picked up This Afternoon by Police, Was Believed To Have Attempted Suicide.

Ernest C. Diebler of Berlin, Wis., until recently a passenger brakeman working on various divisions of the St. Paul railroad out of Milwaukee, was found writhing and groaning in a vacant lot back of Dr. Williams' residence, 42 Sharon street, about two o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Charles Sutherland, city physician, City Marshal Appleby and Officer Brown hastened to the scene in the patrol wagon. The man had threatened to take carbolic acid and it was believed that he had done so until Dr. Sutherland made an examination and discovered no traces of poison. It was his conclusion that Diebler was suffering with hysteria, a condition induced by disordered nerves, but very rare in men. "Oddly enough Mr. Williams had secured a warrant for the stranger's arrest only this forenoon. Diebler was formerly his son-in-law, but his daughter, who is now living at her father's house, secured a divorce from him last August. Since that time he is alleged to have written a number of threatening letters, which are now in the hands of the municipal judge. Last Thursday he appeared in person and he has since been harassing the family with his presence."

Native Indian Christians.

A company has recently been organized in Fatchburgh, India, "to provide remunerative labor for Indian Christians," thus striving to overcome the difficulty of furnishing support for native Christians who have become outcasts for the sake of the Gospel. The company is conducted on the profit-sharing plan, one-fourth of all the profits being divided among those in service for six months or more, in proportion to the size of their wages.

Origin of "Finance."

Many words of most august count prove to be of quite commonplace ancestry when traced to their origin. "Finance" is really only "settling up." Literally, it is just "ending," and was formerly used in that very simple sense in the English language. Then it came to signify settling up with a creditor, and acquired the special sense of ransom.

REPORT OF A COMMISSION

Roosevelt Came to Their Rescue—
General News of Interest From the Nation's Capital.
(By William Wolff Smith.)

Washington, D. C., June 16.—(Special Correspondence.)—Several months ago President Roosevelt instructed the civil service commission to compile statistics relating to the work of the clerks in the government departments in Washington, with a view of determining their fitness to hold such positions and if not to retire them at the government expense. The "aged clerks" have caused some stirring times in Washington this session. Numerous associations have been formed for the purpose of securing their retirement on reaching a certain age, which has met with considerable opposition. The matter came to a climax a few months ago when the house committee on appropriations attached to one of the big supply bills a provision authorizing the dropping from the rolls of clerks over seventy and reducing the pay of those over sixty years of age. At this juncture the President came to the rescue of the aged clerks and directed the civil service commission to obtain from all the departments full information as to all employees sixty-five years of age and over, not only as to the number employed in Washington, but as to the quantity and quality of work performed by each, the method of entering the service, length of service, salary and whether veterans of wars or civilians. The report of the commission shows that the aged clerks of the government are highly efficient in the discharge of their duties. The statistics submitted to the President show that of 25,300 or more government employees in Washington, 1,626 are at least 65 years of age, of whom 127 entered the service through the civil service examinations, 44 entered through the preference, and 33 were appointed through competitive examinations. They further show that 29 ex-soldiers and 21 civilian employees are engaged in work of an executive character, 33 veterans and 69 civilians in clerical duties, 90 veterans and 121 civilians in work of a mechanical nature, 223 veterans and 93 civilians in work of a sub-clerical character, while 16 veterans and 49 civilians are employed as unskilled laborers. As to the degree of efficiency of the work performed by these aged clerks, the commission says that 90 of them render poor service, 251 fair service, 229 average, 682 good and 374 render excellent service to the government. As to the amount of work performed, ten of these clerks are rated as accomplishing absolutely nothing, two as doing one-tenth of the amount required of them, five two-tenths, six three-tenths, 29 four-tenths, 124 five-tenths, 161 six-tenths, 236 seven-tenths, 257 eight-tenths, 275 nine-tenths, while 421 are given as performing all of the work to be expected of the most capable employee. As to the quantity and quality of work performed, it is found that 270 employees accomplish all work assigned them in an "excellent manner," 222 employees do work of a "good" grade and eight-tenths of the amount required, so that it will be seen that the old clerks are by no means useless.

The commission further informs the President that there are 948 employees between the ages of 65 and 70 who perform 51.7 per cent of the required amount of work and draw an average salary of $1,253 per annum, whereas, were it adjusted to the work they actually performed, their average salary would be $1,024. The employees from 70 to 75 years number 425, perform 78.4 per cent of their labor, receive $1,220 and earn $950, while those over 75 number 213, perform 72.1 per cent of their work, draw $1,166, whereas if based on their actual work they would receive an average of $841 per year each. The total salaries of all clerks sixty-five years old and over is given as $1,972,580.50 per annum, whereas if they were adjusted to the amount of work actually performed, the total would be $1,570,000 per annum. The average quantity of work for all employees of the specified age is 79.5 per cent, while for the veterans alone the average is 80.3 per cent. There are 579 veterans, between 65 and 70, 253 between 70 and 75 and 102 over 75 years old.

Of the 1,626 aged servants of the government in Washington, 1,403 are men and 223 women. The Treasury department has 450 of them on its rolls, the Interior, 427, government printing office, 226; War department, 211; Postoffice department, 89; Commerce and Labor, 63, and the Agricultural department, 61. The other departments have 28 and less old clerks in their employ. Taking up the question of salaries, the commission found that 218 aged government clerks draw less than $720 per annum; 135 between that and $840; 208 less than $900; 102 less than $1,000; 128 less than $1,100; 315 less than $1,200; 208 less than $1,300; 147 less than $1,400; 208 less than $1,500; 147 less than $1,600; 92 between $2,000 and $2,500 and 32, $2,500 or more a year.

"Shoemaker's," that famous resort in Washington for statesmen, newspaper men and visitors, known throughout the country as "Cobweb Hall," has had much free advertising, but it is doubtful if it ever broke into the records of congress until the other day when Judge S. H. Cowan of Texas brought it before the committee on agriculture of the house. "Shoemaker's" is the birthplace of the famous "Rickey," which is named after the man who first conducted it, the well known Col. Joe Rickey. When congress is in session there are probably more distinguished men seen at Shoemaker's in the course of a day than at any other resort in Washington. Established in 1840 there are pictures and bottles on the wall which have not been disturbed since that day and when Mr. Munsey erected the magnificent office building which goes under his name and which is next door to Shoemaker's, the contractors gave a bond not to disturb the walls of Shoemaker's. Consequently everybody appreciated the remarks of Judge Cowan, who is the attorney for the cattle raisers and who is representing them in the matter of the meat inspection which is now before congress. Speaking of the slaughter houses and, particularly those of Fort Worth, Texas, Judge Cowan said:

"Now, you ought to have the power to prohibit the making of meat and meat products under circumstances and conditions that will render them unclean, unwholesome or unhealthy, but never give the power to declare what shall be the construction of a building in order that it may be wholesome. Some of you gentlemen probably have gone into Shoemaker's where the cobwebs are permitted to hang upon the chandeliers—if they may be called such. (Laughter.) I have heard that they sell whiskey there of the best quality in Washington. Are not cobwebs generally associated with whiskey?" facetiously inquired Representative Scott of Kansas.

"It may be so," replied Judge Cowan. They say it cuts them out of your throat. (Laughter.) But it is just as absurd to say that the fact that there are wooden beams in the slaughter house at the packing establishment at Fort Worth, and therefore they should be taken out, it is just as absurd as it would be to injure the meat as it would be to say that these cobwebs at Shoemaker's injure the whiskey. They have nothing to do with it. (Laughter.) Judge Cowan could have gone further and said that instead of injuring whiskey, cobwebs, that is, on the outside of the bottles, are generally supposed to improve it as showing that it is of great age.

The timber reserves of the United States against depredations, usually on the coast of Florida, the suppression of illegal traffic in liquor, firearms and ammunition in Alaska; the suppression of slave trade, the suppression of multitudes on board merchant vessels, and the enforcement of the anchorage laws of the country. Occasionally the revenue cutter service is called upon for men to command boats under the fish commission and compliance is made therewith. The service also holds itself in readiness to cooperate with the navy. During the Spanish war all the vessels on the eastern shores of the country became a part of the North Atlantic squadron, eight of which were around Cuba. One of the cutters was at the battle of Manila bay. Other vessels were assigned by the War department for the purpose of looking after the alleged mines laid by Spaniards in various harbors in this country. The service is also empowered to enforce the regulations governing wharf, sailing and motor boat regulations to insure the safety of participants and spectators. In fact, the service is a general utility service of the sea, always under military discipline. It assists the Postoffice department in carrying the mails, it aids the Smithsonian institution in obtaining anthropological specimens in Alaska and is always ready to perform service for any of the executive departments of the government.

One of the witnesses in the meat inspection hearing before the house committee on agriculture was detailing the use to which certain parts of animals are used in the slaughter houses, saying that nothing is allowed to go to waste. "We get everything from the pig but the squeal," he said. "Yes, and you bet the beef trust would put that in the graphophone if it could," remarked a spectator.

"The Filipinos have a natural desire for independence some day, but the intelligent classes do not want it just now," said Gov. Gen. James Smith of the United States Philippine commission today. Mr. Smith said the Filipinos realize they are not prepared for independence and that they will not be prepared for it for a long time to come. "I have repeatedly asked them if they wished the U. S. government and fleets and institutions to pack up and sail away and without exception they have answered in the negative," said Governor Smith. "They have not sufficient money to run their government and they realize they would be a prey to foreign nations. The insular government in the Philippines has been bothered by the persistent rumor that the United States intends to sell the islands to Japan. The Filipinos do not like the Japanese, and they fought us with protests against such a move. There was no desire on the part of the United States to sell and none on the part of Japan to buy; as the latter country is not prepared to defend the sea coasts of the islands which are more extensive than those of the mainland of the United States."

Edward Smith of This City Will Be Seventy in April and Will Doubtless Be Retired With Pension.
Former Alderman Edward Smith will reach his seventieth milestone next April and if the age rules of the Chicago & North-Western railroad are observed, will be retired from active service with a pension. Since 1859 he has been occupied in keeping the company's telegraph wires in shape and he is probably the oldest telegrapher in actual service in the country today. Although he is foreman and is required only to direct the work, he is still as active as a man of fifty and cast a pole with the agility of a boy. Mr. Smith was born in the state of Virginia.

A man should take such precautions as he can to safeguard any investment he makes. A house owner's expense for painting is very often larger than it would be if he personally looked after the material put upon it. There is often a difference of three years in the wearing of two different paints. Certainly in this case, time is money. If you will see that Pure White Lead, mixed with Pure Linseed Oil, is used on your house, you will place your painting bills on a reasonable basis. You can tell the pure lead from the adulterated kind by the brand—

"Poverty" was the theme of Rev. Dr. J. W. Laughlin at the Presbyterian church yesterday. He discussed on the subject and generally and specifically named a few causes and effects and suggested a new remedy. He said:

"I do not know that any apology is necessary for bringing such a subject before this community, and yet there are those who may question the wisdom of the discussion. What has our community to do with poverty? Are we not all well fed? Have we not sufficient clothing? Have any of our families been driven from their homes because they were not able to pay the rent? Why then discuss the question?"

"It is a good thing for people in such a community to know 'how the other half lives.' We will enlarge our sympathy by widening our vision. It will create new interest in the world about us to know the condition of that world. It is true as Mr. Hunter in his book on 'Poverty' says that ninety-nine per cent of the 'wealth' of the country is held by less than one per cent of the people, that thirty-eight per cent of the families are 'poor' and fifty per cent are very poor, it is something for us all to think about."

"The problem of poverty is the most perplexing problem in modern life. Books by the score have been written by men attempting to name its cause and cure and not one has satisfied the thoughtful student of sociology that the secret has been revealed. It is both a national and an individual curse. It hedges life with innumerable obstacles and sends many a man to the grave unknown because he did not have money with which to express himself, or to accomplish his lifelong purpose. Books with their lore and inspiration, learning with its subtlety and power, leisure for meditation and study are largely removed from the man without money."

"I am not condemning that condition of things which compels a man to work. Work is a blessing. Because men have been compelled to work they have wrought great victories and achieved great results for the individual and for the nation."

A man in such a condition is not a pauper. He is simply poor. The dread of pauperism is the agony of such a man. He is haunted by a constant fear of coming to want. The nightmare of charity hovers about him and he is driven by its near approach until some go insane, others commit suicide. When he once accepts charity, then the fear with which he was previously haunted leaves him. The line between poverty and pauperism has been crossed and he has no more anxiety. Causes Of Poverty.

"There are a thousand things that contribute to poverty and the one thing which is held responsible for the largest contribution will depend on the way the investigator looks at the subject. Over-crowding, lack of work, extravagant living, bad management, fashion, incompetence, sickness, intemperance, each contributes its part to the deterioration of the man or the family. But after marshaling all the forces that fight against independence and manhood the saloon must be made to carry the largest responsibility for the poverty of the country. When you remember that Chicago has six thousand saloons and a daily income of three hundred and sixteen thousand dollars you will not be so imbecile as not to believe that intemperance is the largest contributor to the poverty and want of that city. What proportion of the poverty of Janesville and Rock county is to be attributed to the saloons I do not know. But when in a city of fifteen thousand people there are forty-eight saloons each paying a license of five hundred dollars one wonders where the money comes from. Five hundred dollars is perhaps one fourth the expense of running a saloon. If, so there passes over the bars of the saloons in Janesville about one hundred thousand dollars every year, and that is a conservative estimate. Where does the money come from? And how much better it would be for the industrial life of the county if that hundred thousand dollars were taken from the saloons and placed in the channels of legitimate trade. What a revival of business there would be in boots and shoes, in dry goods and groceries!"

"I know that unhappy and unfavorable environment have much to do with driving men to the saloon, but if there were no saloon there would be more money for the home and much of that unhappy and unfavorable environment would be removed. Remedy For Poverty.

"I know that indolence and improvidence, large families of small children, the decay of many affections, the decline of independence, the desire to live without work all enter into the problem of poverty and make it one of the most perplexing with which the sociologist, political economist and the Christian have to deal. I have never been able to see why some philanthropists do not establish a school for domestic training among the poor. Not a school for fancy cooking or fancy work of any kind, but a school where the plainest sort of house work may be taught, where girls may learn to bake bread, roast potatoes, broil steak, make a dress, darn a stocking and do the plainest kind of house work which the laboring man must have done in his home. There are hundreds of wives who throw into the garbage can in one day all the husbands make in a week. There are hundreds of women who, if they only knew how, could make their homes clean and comfortable and throw an air of tidiness and neatness about it, which would keep men from the street and from the saloon if only they had been taught how before they became wives. Economy is a difficult lesson to learn, and domestic economy is the most difficult of all. It not only includes within its science the ability to make the best investment of money but the best use of the things for which money has been exchanged. It suggests that the kitchen is the center and heart of the home and upon it depends the happiness and the success of the family."

"There is a suggestion that is applicable all the way from 'Poverty Flat to Easy street.' There would be fewer applications for relief, fewer men in the saloons, fewer divorces, fewer divorce cases, if the plain lessons of homemaking and house-keeping were taught the girls before they take upon themselves the responsibility of wifehood and motherhood. It is economy, thrift and common sense rather than culture, higher learning and art that make for prosperity and happiness in the home and in the nation."

"The organization of charitable effort so as to help the poor to better conditions by putting a poor man or a poor family into some sort of relation with another family able to direct and sympathize and assist, is the modern, scientific, sensible way of helping the needy to better conditions. The indiscriminate giving of money is injurious to the man who gives and to the man who receives. It makes the man who gives think he has done his whole duty without bothering himself with any personal attention to the conditions which brought the beggar to his door. It destroys the independence and manhood of the one who receives since he received something for nothing, and it is but another step towards vagrancy and dependency."

"A family was once reported in great distress. The town authorities provided a week's supply for the household. What did this family do but invite in all their neighbors for a banquet and in one evening the whole stock of eatables was devoured and at noon the next day the family was in as great distress as ever before. Another family was reported in want and a generous woman went with a well-filled pocket book and left money enough to provide them with the necessities for a week. Imagine the surprise of this generous soul when she next visited the home to be shown the photographs of the mother and all the children taken with the money left by the hand of charity."

"It was not money those people needed; it was friendship. They needed some good, kind soul to tell them what to do and how to do it. Men need an opportunity and some one to direct them in using it."

Heimstreet
Says

Fifty years ago I used to draw soda water from a small draught tube on the counter. We had six or eight syrups, which were kept in bottles. We made our own carbonic gas from marble dust and oil of vitrol. Now I have a Mexican Onyx fountain costing over $1000; have thirty syrups and lots of fancy drinks; three good clerks, and tables and cozy corners for all. Our sodas are served with the finest of glass and Haviland china.

English physicians are now recommending soda water for dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. They claim that the gas agitates the food and promotes digestion. This must be so as those who drink Heimstreet's soda can be told by their good nature.

The Park Pharmacy has already become what many prophesied months ago; that it is headquarters for fine sodas and ice cream. Plenty of tables, stay as long as you wish. This week we shall serve a special cream called RUSSIAN FRUIT. Call for it if you wish something new and touching. Remember the password: it is "Meet me at the Park Soda Fountain."

"Pope says to 'make each day a critique on the last'—and if we could do this for six months in advertising a store we could get rich enough to 'branch out' or retire."

Brutal clubbings of prisoners have been known to Russia but not in civilized Janesville.

Candidates for county offices are coming out as fast as mushrooms do after a rain storm.

Boom Janesville for all that it is worth and that means that the boom need have no limit.

Warm weather breeds fish and fish stories and we may soon expect the tale of the sea serpent to be repeated.

Janesville has had its second circus for the present season. By the way, the carnival appears to have dropped out of sight.

"Greater Janesville" should be a motto that strikes warmth to the heart of every resident of the corporate limits of the city.

That Madison interurban looks like a tangible proposition just now. What it needs is careful nursing by citizens of Janesville.

The alleged exposure of the conditions in the Chicago packing houses has not diminished the sale of the meat to any great extent.

Janesville's streets are being gradually repaired. There is always a set of chronic kickers who object to any improvement whatsoever.

State politics are still bubbling like a kettle over a small fire. Everything seems to be waiting for the return of the one and only "boss" that Wisconsin ever had.

College boys are now finding for the first time that life is not all one pleasant dream of football, baseball, and dances. Work, dull work, makes life what it is.

Boys that run away from home and meet death in railway accidents with no means of identification except letters from devoted mothers who beg their return home, bring tears to the hearts of even the strongest men.

Janesville will not celebrate the fourth this year but plans might now be started for a big one next year. Suppose an old-fashioned "Home Coming" of all former Janesville residents was started. Would it not bring thousands back to the city for two or three days?

Sidewalk and gutter grades are again bothering citizens of Janesville. Whether it is the fault of the city engineer or past mistakes to blame it is certain that Janesville streets and gutters will soon look like a crazy quilt if the present changing of grades continues.

WHAT IS A MAN WORTH?
"What is a man worth?" says The Wall Street Journal. "The first answer is, of course, that it depends on the man. An insurance company formed to take a risk upon the life of one man only could not afford to use the actuary's table of averages. At best the transaction would be in the nature of a bet. But insuring many lives, the company could and does do a sound business on their average value expressed in years, because over a great number of cases results are constant."

"Dr. Holt" (lack of space prohibits his five other names) has been expressing in dollars and cents what he estimates to be the value of a man, and the information was given to the "American Medical Association" at Boston, the doctor is worth taking seriously. Plain man, without trimmings, he estimates at $5,488 when he is twenty-five, taking that as his maximum and finding a steady decrease until he becomes worthless after seventy, and a loss to the community from that on. The calculation must be based upon prospective working capacity, because he finds the value of a boy of fifteen about half that of a man of twenty-five. This is certainly not true of the boy's work in any manual employment, so that the doctor puts some water in the capitalization.

"The calculations have an interest in connection with the bill to reform naturalization, abuses recently passed by congress. That bill exacts a higher standard from new citizens. It requires a knowledge of the English language, which was not imperative before. It gives some possibility of withdrawing naturalization papers fraudulently obtained, and it also puts the expense of naturalizing on the applicant, who pays eleven dollars for the privilege he obtains. "It is imperative that we should keep our citizenship as clean as possible. It is too great a privilege to be trifled with. Citizenship carries duties as well as privileges, and we are in a manner bound to see that the ability to discharge those duties exists." At the same time between Dr. Holt's estimate of the cash value of a man and an entirely comprehensible idea to make immigration difficult we can trace a lesson and a warning. It is not too much to say, economically, that any nation receiving new citizens would be justified in paying a cash price for any able-bodied man, any child in good health and any woman not past the child-bearing age.

"It is impossible to enter into Dr. Holt's theory of the value of what he calls a 'professional man' at any age. 'Professor' covers anything nowadays from pedagogy to prize fighting. The strict English definition limited the term to the medical profession, the church and the bar. Pooh Bah, in the Mikado, on the other hand, drew the line at stock brokers. It is safe enough to lump them all together and let them average themselves like the actuary's life table. We have workmen who can make a good deal more money in a week than plenty of professional men, and the efforts of some of our professional men for the 'public good' are of doubtful value."

"What our agricultural districts are saying north, south and west is that we want men. We ought to know their cash value better than any other nation. We need them and use them in our business. Whatever they may have been before they came here we can make men of them in a broader sense than many of them contemplated. Let us by all means regulate immigration and citizenship, but let us also remember not to put the bars up too high."

THAT INTERURBAN.
Mr. H. H. Clough has again offered the citizens of Janesville an opportunity to come into direct communication with Madison and all intermediate points by means of an interurban road to Madison. The proposition is worth considering. For the past four years interurban franchises have been asked for by different prominent business men, but thus far no road has been built. Mr. Clough is a man who does things and his proposed interurban would mean great things for Greater Janesville. It is a good thing for Janesville and what is good for Janesville should be pushed. Janesville now has the opportunity of becoming a city of some magnitude in southern Wisconsin and such a plan as Mr. Clough suggests should be endorsed by everyone who has a civic pride in the city.

WHAT MADISON?
Madison the literary, Madison the cultured, Madison nestled among its four lakes, Madison, the seat of learning, the home of the state solons, the abiding place of the state capital, was stamped. Frightened by the mutterings of a vagrant negro who proclaimed the city was to be engulfed by the beautiful, limpid lakes that surround it, it went crazy. Press dispatches say that hundreds left the city for over Sunday, the accredited day of the disaster, for pleasure only. Not because they were afraid, but simply for a day's outing. And it is Madison.

PRESS COMMENT.
Sew in A New One.
Madison Journal: Make room for another star in the old flag.

Advised To Be Careful.
Chicago News: Before Secretary Shaw opens his mouth he should make it a point to have his foot tied down.

Fearful Free Lunch Meats.
Chicago Tribune: Evidence as to the unsafe and insane nature of the free lunch continues to accumulate.

More's The City.
Exchange: As Curtis Jett was locked up at the time, it is useless for him to confess to being the mysterious "Mr. Dove."

Friday Longest Day of Year.
Superior Telegram: Next Friday will be the longest day in the year, but there are no indications up to date that it will be the hottest.

Angelic Looks Skin Deep.
Exchange: You can't tell much from early appearances. Many a boy who wears his hair in curls until he is seven years old, chews tobacco before he is eleven.

He Continues To Shy.
Chicago News: Senator La Follette has been rubbing against civilization long enough not to be scared at automobiles, but he continues to shy at the Fairbanks boom.

The Glitter Compensates.
Sheboygan Journal: Young West Point graduates get less pay as army officers than skilled mechanics, but then they have a lot of gold braid on their clothes, and that makes up for it.

Three Good American Names.
Cleveland Leader: A congressman opines that immigrants should be compelled to assume American names. Good idea—let us rechristen them O'Brien, Schwartzmeister and Cohn.

Seems Impossible.
Milwaukee Sentinel: Presumably Bryan regards Hearst about as Cleveland regards Bryan.

land regards Bryan. It remains for the party to evolve somebody that Hearst can view with alarm.

As To That, Opinions May Differ.
Rockford Register-Gazette: Tom Browne came all the way from London to draw for the Chicago Tribune and most people think that his cartoons, too, are too far fetched.

Gorman's Successor.
Boston Globe: William Pinkney Whyte of Maryland has taken his seat in the United States senate as Senator Gorman's successor. We do not know why he does not spell his name William Pinkney Whyte.

How Many?
Fond du Lac Bulletin: If Bryan is the democratic candidate for president in 1908, about how many men who are regarded as high republican political figures in Wisconsin will be counted in the Bryan column.

Direrful Rumor of Wall Street.
Chicago Record-Herald: Wall street is alleged to be planning to bring on a panic for the purpose of beating Roosevelt. There may not be any truth in the report, but nobody believes that Wall street would be likely, because of patriotic motives, to scout such a plan.

Sits in Hammock Now.
Exchange: Another historical character who is seldom heard of these days is the young man who, in the good old days, used to hang over the front gate on summer evenings. The trouble is that the front gate is becoming obsolete save in the country and small villages.

Something Practical At Last.
Oshkosh Northwestern: Senator La Follette has secured the passage by the senate of his bill granting the state of Wisconsin the remainder of the public lands in the state for park purposes. This is one time, at least, when the senator has secured something that is really practical.

Eager For The Furnace.
Milwaukee Sentinel: In telling why it prefers Bryan to Hearst the Dubuque Telegraph-Herald says "Hearst has not been burned as yet in the public crucible and his elements determined to the satisfaction of the great mass." But Willie is just dying to be burned.

Outlook Sees A Light.
Milwaukee Journal: It is significant that The Outlook, which, up to the time he got to Washington, had done a great deal to promote Senator La Follette's reputation, should make the following editorial comment in its last issue: "Leadership in the United States senate is passing into the hands of its real publicists—from men of the Platt and Gorman type to men of the type of Spooner and Bailey."

Crime Of The Modern Novelist.
London Globe: One of the first rules that a man who sits down to write a novel should force himself to observe is the one which urges the advisability of writing in one language. Speaking for ourselves, there is nothing in a novel which we find more irritating than a sudden pour into some language other than English. It is bad enough even when the translation is given in brackets. Novels of Indian life are particularly full of this type of outrage. "Obel" cried Musrullah Khan, removing his khaki (pipe) from his chota bazree (mouth), "the gazeka (sun) is already high in the bundebustwallah (sky). One thou lazy rothah (little foolish one), bhukunpow (bestir thyself)!" Mr. Kipling started it. The last straw, in our opinion is administered by a Welsh novelist who positively sprinkles her pages with pure Welsh.

La Follette Coming.
Greif Bay Gazette: There is no longer a doubt that Senator La Follette intends to take an active part in the state campaign this summer. It reports are true. It is stated that he has sent letters to many of his followers requesting them to withhold from pledging themselves for candidates for state offices until his return to the state when a consultation will be held.

This is taken to mean that he intends to use his great influence in behalf of Irvine Lenroot for governor and that he wants no pledges made for other persons. It is also believed that he intends to form a state slate and will use his best endeavors to secure its nomination at the primaries.

It may be, however, that he intends holding a consultation of all his old-time followers, Davidson, Connor, McGilivray and the rest, in the hope of patching up some sort of a truce whereby the half breed element of the state may be saved from destruction. In that case it is altogether probable his plan will fall unless he consents to surrender his gubernatorial candidate for governor and support Davidson, which is not at all likely.

"Buy It At Home" In Song.
The Chippewa Falls Independent prints the following: It is indicative of the spirit that is becoming paramount among the citizens of the towns and cities of the state, a spirit of home trade. Keep the ball rolling. "There was a man in Chippewa, and he was wondrous wise; he marked a silver dollar and gave it all to Lize. She went to see the butcher and she blew the dollar in—it wasn't long before the coin came back again to him. He took it to the merchant and bought a dress for Jane—before the week had finished up, back came the plunk again. He spent the coin in Chippewa, full fifty times or more, but always got it back again and spend it over and over, but when he sent a dollar to Sears & Roebuck's store, Chicago, 'twas gone for good, forever, and he never saw it more."

Pronouncements Getting Too Common.
Chicago Chronicle: Among the edifying incidents of metropolitan life is the appearance of a gentleman engaged in the gambling business in the role of a promulgator of "statements."

This seems to exhaust the possibilities of the "statement business." We have had "statements" from political candidates, packing house inspectors and parties to divorce suits, to say nothing of a continual output from victims of the civil service commission's axe. If the members of the gambling fraternity are now to issue solemn pronouncements every time a "squeal" is made the newspapers will have to establish a new department, besides making an increase in size.

A Model Senator.
Fond du Lac Bulletin: One of the strong and useful senators of the northwest is that brilliant young man of Indiana, Mr. Beveridge, who has developed rapidly. He is a public servant who serves the public. If he serves himself it is by burning midnight oil in literary pursuits, which have never in the slightest degree interfered with his duties as a senator. He is a modest young man without any of the airs of a politician. He has made his own way in the world, is a natural leader, has the respect and confidence of senators of both parties, and while he may not be one of the greatest of our senators, he certainly is one of the most useful, and one of the most promising. He has made it his business to thoroughly qualify himself for substantial public service. His handling of the amendment which will render it next to impossible for the beef trust to so courageously impose upon consumers has won for him the gratitude of millions. Who could have handled the question any better?

LOCAL BRIEFS.
First Venture Into Lake: Capt. Harry Thometz and First Mate Sandy Buchanan claim the distinction of being the first Rock River navigators to get by the Indian Ford dam and into the lake this season. The trip was made yesterday and the transfer service worked to perfection, the work of carrying the boat around taking just 18 minutes after she was on the ways. Once on the lake the wheel got tangled with some weeds and submarine work had to be done by the first mate. Fishing was also poor.

On Horseback From Oak Park: Frank Lloyd Wright, a prominent merchant of Oak Park, Ill., arrived in Janesville from Chicago on a handsome black horse, Saturday evening. His son, F. Lloyd Wright, Jr., arrived here yesterday on horseback and another son, John, reached here this morning by train and purchased a horse from a man named Norris. The party expected to start for Rockford this afternoon. Later in the summer the three will join a large party of horsemen on a long jaunt through Wisconsin and they are picking out the good roads and stopping places now.

AUTO CRASH BRINGS DEATH.
Chauffeur for Wealthy New York Man Has Skull Crushed Against Telegraph Pole.

Asbury Park, N. J., June 16.—Henry Isaacson, chauffeur for Peter A. Fogarty, of New York, was killed here Sunday afternoon when the automobile in which he and his employer were riding was in collision with another automobile driven by Isaac T. Strauss, a leather manufacturer of Newark, N. J., who had as his guests Misses Rena and Augusta Belasco, daughters of David Belasco the playwright.

Both of the young women were bruised by jumping when the crash came.

Mr. Fogarty was driving his car at the time of the accident with the chauffeur sitting at his side.

The Fogarty automobile was thrown sharply against a telegraph pole and Isaacson was pitched out, suffering a fracture of the skull.

TWO BAD FIRES AT ST. LOUIS.
Fifty Horses Are Cremated When Large Livery Stable Is Destroyed by the Flames.

St. Louis, June 18.—Two early morning fires Sunday did damage estimated at $125,000 by completely gutting a five-story office building and burning a large livery and undertaking establishment. Fifty horses were incinerated in the latter.

The office building was occupied by the Philip Carey Manufacturing company, the local officers of the Charles Fisher-Mattress company, of Chicago, and the Grand Springs Water company. The combined loss, together with the damage to the building, is estimated at $55,000.

Among the horses burned in the Booker's livery stable fire were several blooded animals with local reputations as trotters.

Pennsylvania Products.
Pennsylvania supplied more hemlock bark for tanning purposes in 1905 than any other state, and it also led in the production of wood alcohol and acetate of lime. It produced 7,890,746 bushels of charcoal, but was a little below Michigan in this particular, which is credited with 8,193,357 bushels. The production of hemlock bark in Pennsylvania for 1905 was $79,773 cords.

She Hadn't Seen It.
A West Philadelphia family was at supper, one night, talking about the engagement of one of the daughters, whose wedding was soon to be. The negro servant, who acted as waitress, laundress, etc., had just brought into the dining room the dessert, when one of the girls asked, "Virginia, have you seen Edith's fiance?" "Laws! I don't know, honey," she replied, "hit ain't been in de wash yet."

Sir Edward Clarke, the noted London lawyer, was speaker of the evening at a gathering of members of his profession. In the course of his remarks he told a story about a clock, upon which Lord Alverstone congratulated him, saying it was "a daisy." Later another lawyer said to him: "Clarke, I think that story grows better every time I hear it." "Why," said Sir Edward, "Lord Alverstone thinks it is a daisy." "Of course," was the reply. "If you look up your botany, you will see that the daisy is a hardy annual."

EAGLES TOOK AN UNEARNED GAME

RIVALS, THE RED SOX, LOST BY SCORE OF 2 TO 1.

SPECTATORS HOOTED UMPIRE

Ten-Inning Struggle at Eagle Park Yesterday Was Witnessed by Large Assemblage.

By a reversed decision in the ninth and two more doubtful rulings, the Janesville Eagles took an unearned game from the Janesville Red Sox at Eagle Park yesterday afternoon. Ten innings were played and the contest was by far the best seen here this year. The grandstand supporters of the rival teams were about evenly divided, but in the ninth and tenth innings the Red Sox received the cheering and Umpire Hager was hooted loudly. The score of 1 to 1, which had been made early in the game, was not changed until the last of the tenth.

Clarke Works Out of Tight Place

The Red Sox began playing ball the moment the game was opened. They had their "ins" and Keri, the first up to bat, reached first on Riley's error. Casey was hit by the pitcher and going one base showed Keri to second. Casey was allowed to fill the bases by an error of Freeborn. While Bahr and Hill were fanning the air Keri was shoved out at home by a double steal on the part of Carle and Casey and Casey reached the plate safely for one score. The Eagles came in but were retired to the field in one, two, three order, Clarke striking out, Freeborn and Maloney and Riley being shut off at first. The Eagles then performed a similar operation on the Red Sox, Hall going out on a short grounder and the two Schmidts failing to locate Pitcher Jones' outs. In the last of the second inning Ward reached first by an error on Keri, but Dunwiddie and Wendt went to the bench on little swats and Jones swung for three strikes. Clarke of the Sox then popped out, Keri was hit by a fair ball and Casey singled out, but was left at the initial bag by a flyout from Carle. The Eagles at bat again. Hallett retired on a caught foul, Allen negotiated a one-base hit, and Maloney was sent after him by an error of Keri. Both died as Riley fanned and Freeborn failed to make a hit. In the fourth Bahr, Hill and Hall were ditched in succession. Ward and Dunwiddie both went one on errors and Wendt was hit by Clarke. The bases were filled, but Clarke was equal to the emergency. He allowed Jones a small hit, but caught Ward at home and then struck out Hallett and Allen.

Eagles Scored in Fifth. At the opening of the fifth G. Schmidt flew out, P. Schmidt struck out and Clarke walked. He managed to steal two bases, but Keri fanned. Then the Eagles scored. Maloney went down on an error. Riley retired on strikes, but Freeborn hammered a three-bagger into right field. Maloney was captured at third, but a single by Ward sent Freeborn over the slab for a run. Dunwiddie touched a small one into Carle and Ward never reached second. In the next three innings the Eagles played excellent ball and sent the Red Sox back to the field each time with but three men being up to bat. The work of the Red Sox was also good, but four men were allowed to try the stick each inning. Then came the exciting ninth. Casey was first up and lined out a two-bagger. Carle went first on an error and a double steal followed. Poor coaching at third kept Casey from scoring at this critical time. Bahr was not permitted to get first, but Hill reached the bag as the sphere was sent home to prevent Casey from crossing the slab. Whether he was safe or not was a matter of discussion in the grandstand, but Umpire Hager called him safe. The Eagles protested and Manager Abbott appeared on the field. The decision was reversed. This was two out and Hall fanned. In the last of the ninth the Eagles failed to even make first base. In the tenth G. Schmidt fell down on a pop fly, P. Schmidt was caught trying to steal second after making a pretty hit and Clarke failed to reach first. Freeborn was first up for the Eagles. He singled and was sent to second by the umpire, a balk being charged against Clarke. The Red Sox were loath to abide by this ruling, but despite the advice "to quit the game," which came from the spectators they resumed play. Ward singled and Freeborn was shoved home for the deciding run.

WENDT FAILED TO GET AN EASY FOUL

Play in Beloit Saturday

Though definite arrangements have not been made it is very likely that the Janesville Y. M. C. A. team will play in Beloit Saturday afternoon with the Line City Association. Nine of the local boys have played several games thus far this year and are still undefeated. Saturday afternoon last they won from the Gazette Office aggregation by a score of 19 to 18. The result of the contest was in doubt up to the ninth inning, when the Y. M. C. A. added five scores to their sixteen and the opposing nine added six to their twelve. Following this contest, which occurred at Athletic park, the Bassett & Echlin and Parker Pen forces competed for honors. The rapid scoring of the Parker Pen team brought the game to a close in the fifth inning. The time was 32 to 2. Next Saturday the Gazette and Bassett & Echlin nines will cross bats.

The Black Hawks

The Black Hawks defeated the Rock River team yesterday to the tune of 16 to 9. The game was a close one up to the eighth inning, when the pitcher of the Rock River team "went to pieces." There was a large crowd out to see the game. Wheelock was in the box for the Black Hawks with Flern as catcher. Lemby pitched for the Rock Rivers with Kehoe catch.

TEA TABLE GOSSIP OF AFFAIRS SOCIAL

And the Goings and Comings of Home Folks and Visitors—Many Are Merry While the Sun Shines.

Some misunderstanding has arisen regarding the regular club night festivities at the golf links tomorrow evening, a report being current that they were to be abandoned. Mrs. Frank Blodgett of the house committee announced this morning that the club supper and dance, Roy Carter's orchestra playing, would be given as planned. There will be a number of events on the links in the afternoon.

It is anticipated that a large delegation of local Freemasons and their families will attend the annual basket picnic of the Lake Kegonsa Masonic Picnic Association, which is to be held at Esther Beach, across Lake Monona, near the city of Madison, on Friday, June 22, 1906. The principal address of the occasion will be delivered by W. W. Perry, grand secretary, and other speakers will be heard. A series of interesting and amusing tub and sack and fat men's races are also scheduled. Janesville Masons have been invited to become permanent members of the picnic association and are seriously considering the invitation.

Saturday afternoon Miss Agnes Shumway entertained a company of twenty-three young ladies at a seven-course luncheon given in honor of Miss Anna Valentine. ## Two New Sporting Champions

J. R. Graham, Winner of Illinois State Shooting Title From Thirty-two Leading Experts---J. D. Travers, Metropolitan Golf Leader.

By winning the diamond badge trophy at the annual tournament of the Illinois Sportsmen's association at Bloomington, Ill., J. R. Graham of Long Lake, Ill., becomes the champion shot of Illinois and will hold that title until, at a succeeding tournament he may be outshot.

The diamond badge trophy is valued at $500 and was presented to the association in 1881 by the sportsmen of the Chicago board of trade.

W. R. Crosby of O'Fallon, Ill., won this trophy a year ago at Lincoln, but was compelled to surrender it this year to an amateur.

Graham is well known in trap shooting circles, and has been a prominent figure in tournaments of the west and middle west for the past ten to fifteen years.

He has a fine reputation as a marksman and has made many fine scores.

He won the championship this year in a field of thirty of the finest shots in the world.

Jerome D. Travers of Montclair, N. J., one of the youngest golfers in the eastern states, won the Metropolitan Golf association's championship recently on the links of the St. Andrew's Golf club, near White Plains, N. Y. He defeated Eben M. Byers of Pittsburg, who played as a member of St. Andrew's, by 3 up and 1 to play.

The final round consisted of thirty-six holes match play, the first four of the links being played in the forenoon and the other four hours later.

JOHNNY LUSH.

Star Philadelphia Twinkler Now in Baseball Hall of Fame.

Or all the facts that are preserved religiously in the baseball annals none was more lasting glory for a pitcher than the announcement that he retired a team without a hit or run. On average the feat is performed about twice a season.

John Lush can well felicitate himself on going in this honored class so early. Other Philadelphia twinklers have been successful in the same direction. Charley Ferguson, "Red" Donahue, "Chief" Fraser and Weldon Henley.

Lush, who is a member of the Quakerette Nationals, performed the feat against the "Boston" recently. Last year Christy Mathewson of the New York Nationals shut out Chicago without a hit or run. Cy Young of the Boston Americans has "turned the trick" several times in the last ten years.

No Lack of Jockeys

Supply of High Class Horse Pilots Is Better Than Ever Before.

The American turf is better off in the matter of capable jockeys this year than ever before. Most of the stars we're riding in the east and owners and trainers have little trouble in securing good boys to handle their horses. Farther than that, the Jockey club has so legislated that the jockeys will be better controlled, so that, all in all, the situation is particularly bright in this respect.

The reinstatement of Hildebrand, or, rather, the granting of a license to him by the stewards of the Jockey club, was well received. He has few equals in the saddle when at his best, and the lesson he got last year is likely to bear fruit. He has been rehired by Harry Payne Whitney, and this means that he will have plenty of good mounts and will therefore be able to win back the confidence of race goers the quicker. Hildebrand will not have the easy time he had in 1904, however, when he headed the list of winning jockeys, as better boys will be riding and he will have more competition. There are at least six or eight jockeys this year who are in no sense behind him in the matter of skill. Then there are ten or twelve others who are likely at any time to jump into the limelight or hold their own with the best.

Jockeys are most uncertain. It is true, and those from whom much is expected oftentimes fail utterly, but there are so many this year of whom much is promised that a number could fall and there would still be enough to go around.

The best boys last season, judged by their positions in the winning jockey list at the end of the eastern racing season, were Miller, O'Neil, W. Knapp, Tommy Burns, J. Martin, Lyne, Hildebrand, Shaw and W. Davis. These jockeys are all in the saddle again this year, and they are experienced enough to more than hold their own under any and all circumstances.

O'Neil, who was in the lead up to the time he stopped riding, has again signed to ride for Newton Bennington. W. Knapp, another boy who came into prominence last year, is almost sure to hold his own with added experience. He is riding for E. B. Bradley and should have no trouble in getting all the outside mounts he wants. Tommy Burns, the old reliable, is riding free lance, but will not lack for mounts, while J. Martin is riding for Captain Harry Brown, Shaw for H. E. Duryea, and W. Davis for August Belmont. Lyne may follow the example of Burns and ride free lance, but he will have no trouble in getting a retainer fee if he so desires, as he ranks with the best.

As clever jockeys as these boys are, it is not improbable that some newcomer may force his way to the front before the season is half over. Great things are looked for from Radtke, Sewell, Nicol and Wiley, while Redfern, L. Smith, J. Jones, Perreux and Romanelli, to say nothing of several others, must be considered. Radtke, who headed the list of winning jockeys at Ingleside, in California, while riding there this winter and then went to New Orleans and Flor Springs and continued to show to advantage, is a welcome addition to the jockey ranks in the east.

Marjorie Bell, Chicago Schoolgirl, Breaks All Records of Her Sex in Throwing Baseball, College Wrestling, Pitches Eels.

Miss Marjorie Bell, who recently broke the world's record in the baseball throw for women, is a senior student at University High school of Chicago, where she is a prominent member of the girls' athletic teams. Her record breaking feat took place at Marshall field, where she threw a regulation ball 204 feet 2 inches.

The former record was held by Miss Alice H. Belding of Vassar college at 195 feet 3 inches, made May 7, 1904.

In the Vassar meet of a few weeks ago Miss Belding's mark was 189 feet

11 inches. Miss Bell's performance was witnessed by Coach A. A. Starg, who measured the length of the throw.

The Intercollegiate Wrestling association has decided that the intercollegiate championship meet next year shall be held at Princeton, probably on April 1. The following officers of the association have been elected: President, J. E. Echeverria of Columbia; vice president, W. M. Yale of Yale; secretary and treasurer, R. C. Folwell of Pennsylvania; and manager, W. W. Wilson of Princeton.

The weights for the different classes in the 1907 bouts will be: Featherweight, 115 pounds; special weight, 125 pounds; lightweight, 135 pounds; welterweight, 145 pounds; middleweight, 155 pounds; light heavyweight, 170 pounds; and heavyweight, 185 pounds. The contestants of each class will draw lots for preliminary bouts, and the winners of these bouts will meet in the finals of their respective classes.

The Cleveland Americans are just now boasting mightily over their new pitching phenomenon, Harry Eels. They consider him a second Amos Eels. Eels it was, who recently out-pitched the famous old veteran, Rube Waddell, of the Philadelphia Athletics, in a sensational game.

In this Cleveland-Philadelphia game thirteen innings were necessary to decide the victory, which was badly needed by the Cleveland Blues, who were endeavoring to chop down the Athletics' lead in the pennant race.

The game ended in the thirteenth inning in Cleveland's favor, the score being 2 to 1. Any man who could shut out the terrible swatters of the Blues for twelve innings is certainly a wonder.

MEMORIAL TO CARL SCHURZ

PLAN TO CONTINUE WORK OF NOTED PUBLICIST.

Representative Men Seek to Raise Fund for Promotion of Cause in Which He Was Interested.

New York, June 18.—The committee of 100, citizens of New York, organized to take measures to establish an appropriate national memorial to the late Carl Schurz, has been completed.

The membership comprises a notably representative list of men, identified with various public affairs, with which Mr. Schurz was actively in touch. Joseph H. Choate is to serve as chairman, Gustav H. Schwab as vice chairman, Isaac N. Seligman as treasurer, and George McAneny as secretary.

It is the purpose of the committee, in cooperation with similar committees in other cities, to raise a fund, part of which will go toward providing an appropriate bronze memorial, but the bulk of which is expected will serve as a foundation for the promotion of one of more of the public causes to which Mr. Schurz devoted his activities.

It has been decided also that the memorial meeting planned for the fall shall be held, under the committee's auspices, on November 14. Mr. Choate will preside, and Governor Cleveland will make one of the principal addresses.

CENTURY FLYER WRECKED

Miraculous Escape from Death of Passengers Credited to Heavy Sleeping Cars.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 18.—The Twentieth Century flyer on the Lake Shore was wrecked near West Seneca, two miles east of here, early Sunday. The wreck was a bad one and it is considered miraculous that no one was killed. One observation coach and five sleepers were badly smashed. The wreck, it is believed, was caused by a split rail. The coupling between the engine and the first car broke and the engine bumped along the ties for 500 feet before it was brought to a stop. There were 67 passengers on the train. All of them were badly shaken up and a few slightly bruised, but not one of them received injuries that necessitated the immediate attention of a physician.

The train which was eastbound was running at the rate of 60 miles an hour when the accident occurred. All of the sleepers were derailed. Two trucks were torn up. Workmen were on the scene all morning clearing up the wreckage, and repairing the roadway. The massive construction of the sleepers and the level, firm roadbed were the two factors which prevented loss of life.

GRODNO GOVERNOR STOPS BLOODSHED

OFFICIAL DENIES JEWS THREW BOMBS AT BIALYSTOK.

CATHOLIC CLERGY AID HIM.

Appeal to Congregations, Implying Them Not to Believe False Reports Spread for Purpose of Shedding Blood.

St. Petersburg, June 18.—The pitiable affair at Bialystok apparently has burned itself out. No further bloodshed was reported Sunday, and no more is expected, even by the radicals, who are satisfied that the authorities are now in control and will do everything possible to prevent a renewal of the excesses.

This confidence is based on the action of the governor of Grodno, who is hated and distrusted by the bureaucrats and who, after investigating the situation at Bialystok, took the unprecedented step in order to prevent a spread of the massacres of telegraphing the authorities of all towns within the Jewish pale denying the alleged official reports that the disorders were due to the wanton throwing of bombs at a Christian procession by Jewish revolutionists.

Clergy Refute False Reports. This measure, aided by the Catholic clergy who throughout Russian Poland Sunday addressed their congregations, implying them not to believe reports spread broadcast for the purpose of stirring up bloody excesses, was efficacious in calming the agitated spirits among the Christian population.

The Catholics of Warsaw cancelled a great religious procession which was to have been held Sunday in order to avoid the chance of a conflict.

The general situation, however, is hourly growing more disquieting and the country seems to be on the verge of another gigantic upheaval.

CHAPTER I.

It was a December morning—the Missouri December of mild temperatures and saturated skies—and the Chicago & Alton's fast train, dripping from the rush through the wet night, had steamed briskly to its terminal in the Union station at Kansas City.

Two men, one smoking a short pipe and the other snapping the ash from a scented cigarette, stood aloof from the hurrying throngs on the platform looking on with the measured interest of those who are in a melee but not of it.

"More delay," said the cigarette, glancing at his watch. "We are over an hour late now. Do we get any of it back on the run to Denver?"

"Hardly, I should say. The 'Limited' is a pretty heavy train to pick up lost time. But it won't make any particular difference. The western connections all wait for the 'Limited,' and we shall reach the seat of war tomorrow night, according to the Boston itinerary."

Mr. Morton P. Adams flung away the unburned half of his cigarette and masked a yawn behind his hand.

"It's no end of a bore, Winton, and that is the plain, unadorned fact," he protested. "I think the governor owes me something. I worried through the Tech because he insisted that I should have a profession; and now I am going in for field work with you in a howling winter wilderness because he insists on a practical demonstration. I shall ossify out there in those mountains. It's written in the book."

"Humph! It's too bad about you," said the other, ironically. "He was a fit figure of a man, clean-cut and vigorous, from the steadfast outlook of the gray eyes and the close clip of the Van Dyck beard to the square fingertips of the strong hands; and his smile was of good-natured contempt. 'As you say, it is an outrage on filial complaisance. All the same, with the right-of-way fight in prospect, Quartz Creek canyon may not prove to be such a valley of dry bones as— Look out, there!'"

"The shifting engine had cut a car from the rear of the lately arrived Alton, and was sending it down the out-bound track to a coupling with the Transcontinental 'Limited.' Adams stepped back and let it miss him by a hand's breadth, and as the car was passing Winton read the name on the panelling.

"The 'Rosemary,' somebody's 20-ton private outfit. That cooks our last chance of making up any lost time between this and to-morrow."

He broke off abruptly. On the square rear observation platform of the private car were three ladies. One of them was small and blue-eyed, with wavy little puffs of snowy hair peeping out under her dainty widow's cap. Another was small and blue-eyed, with wavy masses of flaxen hair caught up from a face which might have served as a model for the most exquisite bisque figure that ever came out of France. But Winton saw only the third.

She was taller than either of her companions—tall and straight and lithe; a charming embodiment of health and strength and beauty; clear-skinned, brown-eyed—a very goddess fresh from the bath, in Winton's instant summing-up of her, and her crown of red-gold hair helped out the simile.

Now thus far in his thirty-year pilgrimages John Winton, man and boy, had lived the intense life of a working hermit so far as the social gods and goddesses were concerned. Yet he had a pang of disappointment or pointed jealousy, or something akin to both—when Adams lifted his hat to this particular goddess, and was rewarded by a little cry of recognition, and stepped up to the platform to be presented to the elder and younger bisques.

So, as we say, Winton turned and walked away as one left out, feeling one moment as though he had been defrauded of a natural right, and deciding himself the next, as a sensible man should. After a bit he was able to laugh at the "sudden attack," as he phrased it, but later, when he and Adams were settled for the day-long run in the Denver sleeper, and the "Limited" was clanking out over the switches, he brought the talk around with a carefully assumed air of lack-interest to the party in the private car.

"She is a friend of yours, then?" he said, when Adams had taken the baited hook open-eyed.

"The technologist modified the assumption. 'Not quite in your sense of the word, I fancy. I met her a number of times at the houses of mutual friends in Boston. She was studying at the conservatory.'

"But she isn't a Bostonian," said Winton, confidently.

"Miss Virginia?—hardly. She is a Carteret of the Carterets; Virginia-born, bred, and named. Stunning girl, isn't she?"

"No," said Winton, shortly, resenting the slang for no reason that he could have set forth in words.

Adams lighted another of the scented villaines, and his clean-shaven face wrinkled itself into a slow smile.

"Which means that she has winged you at sight, I suppose, as she does most men." Then he added, calmly: "It's no use."

"What's 'no go'?"

Adams laughed unfeelingly.

"You remind me of the fable about the head-hiding ostrich. Didn't I see you, staring at her as if you were about to have a fit? But it is just as I tell you, it's no go. She isn't the marrying kind. If you knew her, she'd be nice to you till she got a good chance to flay you alive."

"Break it off!" growled Winton.

"Presently. As I was saying, she would miss the chance of marrying the best man in the world for the sake of taking a rise out of him. Moreover, she comes of old cavalier stock with an English earldom at the back of it, and she's inordinately proud of the fact; while you—er—you've given me to understand that you are a man of the people, haven't you?"

Winton nodded absently. It was one of his minor fads to ignore his lineage, which ran decently back to a colonial governor on his father's side, and to assert that he did not know his grandfather's middle name—which was accounted for by the very simple fact that the elder Winton had no middle name.

"Well, that settles it definitely," was the Bostonian's comment. "Miss Carteret is of the sang azure. The man who marries her will have to know his grandfather's middle name—and a good bit more besides."

Winton's laugh was mockingly good-natured.

"You have missed your calling by something more than a hand's breadth, Mr. Winton. You should have been a novelist. Give you a spike and a cross-tie, and you'd infer a whole railroad. But you plague my curiosity. Where are these American royalties of yours going in the Rosemary?"

"To California. The car belongs to Mr. Somerville Darrah, who is vice president and manager in fact of the Colorado & Grand River road; the 'Rajah,' they call him. He is a relation of the Carterets, and the party is on its way to spend the winter on the Pacific coast."

"And the little lady in the widow's cap, is she Miss Carteret's mother?"

"Miss Bessie Carteret's mother and Miss Virginia's aunt. She is the chaperon."

Winton was silent while the "Limited" was roaring through a village on the Kansas side of the river. When he spoke again it was not of the Carterets; it was of the Carterets' kinsman and host.

"I have heard somewhat of the Rajah," he said, half musically. "In fact, I know him, by sight. He is what the magazines are fond of calling an 'industry colonel,' a born leader who has fought his way to the front. If the Quartz Creek row is anything more than a stiff bluff on the part of the C. & G. R. it will be quite as well for us if Mr. Somerville Darrah is safely at the other side of the continent—and well out of reach of the wires."

Adams came to attention with a half-hearted attempt to galvanize an interest in the business affair.

"Tell me more about this mysterious jangle we are heading for," he rejoined. "Have I enlisted for a soldier when I thought I was only going into peaceful exile as an assistant engineer of construction on the Utah Short Line?"

"That remains to be seen," Winton took a leaf from his pocket memorandum and drew a rough outline map. "Here is Denver, and here is Carbonate," he explained. "At present the Utah is running into Carbonate this way over the rails of the C. & G. R. on a joint track agreement which either line may terminate by giving six months' notice of its intention to the other. Got that?"

"To have and to hold," said Adams. "Go on."

"Well, on the first day of September the C. & G. R. people gave the Utah management notice to quit."

"They are bloated monopolists," said Adams, sententiously. "Still, I don't see why there should be any scrapping over the line in Quartz Creek canyon."

"No? You are not up in monopolistic methods. In six months from September 1st the Utah people will be shut out of Carbonate business, which is all that keeps that part of their line alive. If they want a share of that traffic after March 1st, they will have to have a road of their own to 'carry it over.'"

"Precisely," said Adams, stifling a yawn. "They are building one, aren't they?"

"Trying to," Winton amended. "But, unfortunately, the only practical route through the mountains is up Quartz Creek canyon, and the canyon is already occupied by a branch of the Colorado & Grand River."

"Still, I don't see why there should be any scrapping."

"Don't you? If the Rajah's road can keep the new line out of Carbonate till the six months have expired, it will have a monopoly of all the carrying trade of the camp. By consequence it can force every shipper in the district to make iron-clad contracts, so that when the Utah line is finally completed it won't be able to secure any freight for a year at least."

"Oh! that's the game, is it? I begin to savvy the burro; that's the proper phrase, isn't it? And what are our chances?"

"We have about one in a hundred, as near as I could make out from Mr. Callowell's statement of the case. The C. & G. R. people are moving heaven and earth to obstruct us in the canyon. If they can delay the work a little longer, the weather will do the rest. With the first heavy snow in the mountains, which usually comes long before this, the Utah will have to put up its tools and wait till next summer."

Adams lighted another cigarette.

"Pardon me if I am inquisitive," he said, "but for the life of me I can't understand what these obstructionists can do. Of course, they can't use force."

Winton's smile was grim. "Can't they? Wait till you get on the ground. But the first move was peaceable enough. They got an injunction from the courts restraining the new line from encroaching on their right of way."

"Which was a thing that nobody wanted to do," said Adams, between indignations.

"Which was a thing the Utah had to do," corrected Winton. "The canyon is a narrow gorge—a mere slit in parts of it. This is where they have us."

"Oh, well, I suppose we took an appeal and asked to have the injunction set aside?"

"We did, promptly; and that is the present status of the fight. The appeal decision has not yet been handed down; and in the meantime we go on building railroad, incurring all the penalties for contempt of court with every shovelful of earth moved. Do you still think you will be in danger of ossifying?"

Adams let the question rest while he asked one of his own.

"How do you come to be mixed up in it, Jack? A week ago some one told me you were going to South America to build a railroad in the Andes. What switched you?"

Winton shook his head. "Fate, I guess; that and a wire from President Callowell, of the Utah, offering me this. Chief of Construction Everts, in charge of the work in Quartz Creek canyon, said what you said, a few minutes ago—that he had not hired out for a soldier. He resigned, and I'm taking his berth."

Adams rose and buttoned his coat.

"By all of which it seems that we two are in for a good bit more than the ossifying exile," he remarked. And then: "I am going back into the Rosemary to pay my respects to Miss Virginia Carteret. Won't you come along?"

"No," said Winton, more shortly than the invitation warranted; and the technologist went his way alone.

CELEBRATE BIRTH OF REPUBLICANISM

SEMI-CENTENNIAL BEING HELD AT PHILADELPHIA.

FREMONT VOTERS IN FORCE

Aged and Infirm Men Who Cast Their Ballots for the Pathfinder Evoked Enthusiasm as They March to Seats.

Philadelphia, June 18.—In the same assembly room in the Musical Fund hall where, on June 17, 1856, the Republican party opened its first national convention which named Fremont and Dayton as its presidential ticket, there gathered Sunday hundreds of Republicans from different sections of the country to commemorate the event. It was the opening meeting of the four days' celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Republican party under the auspices of the National Republican league.

The old hall, which has changed little since the first convention was held within its walls, was crowded with enthusiastic Republicans who cheered every time the name of any of the Republican presidents was mentioned.

Honor Fremont Voters. Among those who participated in the exercises were 152 men who had voted for Fremont for president. They entered the hall in a body and were assigned to seats in the front part of the auditorium. The appearance of the old men, some of whom could hardly walk, was the occasion of long and enthusiastic applause. In the ranks of the 152 was a delegate who proposed the name of Abraham Lincoln for vice president, but as the Illinois man was not well known the nomination went to Dayton. The delegates from Texas, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas to the convention attended in a body and many other delegates were distributed about the hall.

While the meeting Sunday commemorated the beginning of the first convention, it was devoted largely to addresses in memory of Abraham Lincoln.

Speaker Cannon, of the national house of representatives, and Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, who were to make addresses, were unable to be present.

Same Clergyman Officiates. Gov. Pennypacker, of Pennsylvania, presided and introduced the Rev. Edward M. Levy, a Baptist clergyman of this city, who delivered the invocation at the opening of the convention 50 years ago. He performed a like service Sunday, after which Gov. Pennypacker delivered an address. Among other things, he said: "Fittingly we meet within the limits of that commonwealth in which the party had its origin and which, while receiving the least proportionate reward, has ever given to it the most continuous and effective support. Since the election of Abraham Lincoln in 1860, Pennsylvania has never cast an electoral vote against a candidate of the Republican party for the presidency. The largest majority ever received by a presidential candidate in America was given in Pennsylvania to a Republican."

The governor briefly reviewed the achievements of the Republican party, and continuing said:

Province of Party. "Let us not forget that the province of the Republican party, the outcome of the highest wisdom, has been to construct and to uphold. Cleanliness and decency are among the latest human acquisitions, and American life has not yet reached its farthest stage of development. Many a gallant knight has fought behind a rusty shield and still has overcome his foe. Correct the evils which may have arisen in transportation, but do not forget that the system as established has created Chicago and St. Louis and has peopled the west. Cleanse wherever necessary but preserve. If there be an occasional individual among us who is too rich, the policy of the Republican party which has given him his opportunity likewise given comfort and solace to millions of prosperous people."

Flag from Lincoln's Bier. Historical papers were read by William Barnes, Sr., of New York, who displayed a flag which covered Lincoln's bier as his body lay in state at Albany. Dr. Robert Reyburn, Washington, who attended both Lincoln and Garfield, and Jacob Wend, of Beaver, Pa.

Col. A. K. McClure, of this city, delivered an address on "Abraham Lincoln" in which he reviewed the martyred president's life and the events of his time.

The programme included numerous musical selections.

ANGELL TALKS ON HONESTY

Tells Students to Nerve Themselves to Maintain Pure and Lofly Ideals of Duty and Life.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 18.—President James B. Angell of the University of Michigan, delivering the baccalaureate address Sunday night to the graduating class of 1906, took for his subject, "Honesty."

President Angell pointed to recent discoveries of dishonesty in high places and urged the graduates to nerve themselves for a struggle to maintain their pure and lofty ideals of duty and life, no matter how others, no more gifted and no better trained, seemed by unscrupulous policy to be passing ahead in the race for wealth or professional success.

BETEL-NUT CROP FAILURE.

This, We Are Told, Means Distress to One-Fifth of the Human Race.

Distress of a sort not readily appreciated by persons living outside of Asia has been caused by a scarcity of betel nuts. It is only comparable, to an American mind, to a sudden doubling and trebling of the price of tobacco, and even that does not tell the story.

One-fifth of the human race chews betel. It is a universal habit in India. Men, women and children use this nut. It is not so much a luxury as a necessity of life.

Its use is linked with the ceremony of ordinary politeness. When two persons meet, after the first greetings, one offers his betel box. For him to neglect this show of courtesy would be rudeness, for the other to refuse would be an insult.

Betel chewing is not as many believe an injurious habit. On the contrary, the drug has positive virtues; it benefits the digestion, regulates the kidneys and preserves the teeth, even though it discolors them.

The culture of the areca palm, on which the betel nut grows, is a vast and profitable industry. In ordinary times 12,000 nuts sell for less than $5. Yet an acre of trees in bearing produces a return of $100 a year.

India, besides her own immense production, imports yearly more than 30,000,000 pounds of the nuts.

"WHALE" OF AN ORE SHIP.

Immense Lake Steamer That Carries 12,500 Tons of Iron at a Load.

Two years ago a Duluth company built the immense ore steamer, Augustus B. Wolvin, carrying 12,500 tons and having 32 hatches. For swift loading and unloading this remarkable vessel has never been equaled, writes Herbert N. Casson, in Munsey's. Its records are incredible in Europe and starting to the steamboat men of the United States. For instance, a load of 10,245 tons of ore was placed on board her in 90 minutes, and unloaded to the last pound in four and a half hours. Forty years ago a load of 600 tons was put aboard by a crowd of men with shovels and wheelbarrows in not less than three days. Today the Wolvin takes on 500 tons in five minutes and unloads it in 15.

The Wolvin has set a new standard for ore ships to which the United States Steel corporation has been obliged to conform. Last year, feeling that its fleet was dwarfed by this great independent vessel, the steel trust launched four new boats, each nine feet longer than the Wolvin, and built on similar lines. These gigantic boats represent an outlay of $1,700,000 apiece, and will carry 800,000 tons of ore down the lakes in a single season—enough to keep an old-time furnace busy for 400 years.

HE KNEW ABOUT APPLES.

And Was Willing to Keep the Dealer from Imposing on a Buyer.

Not long ago a man was about to purchase a barrel of apples at the establishment of a produce dealer. They appeared to be especially fine ones, but an old farmer standing near whispered to him to look in the middle of the barrel, relates Sturges's Statehood.

This, the would-be purchaser did, to find that with the exception of a layer at each end the apples were small and inferior.

"I'm much obliged," he said, turning to the old farmer.

"I've got some nice ones on my wagon I just brought in," the old fellow ventured, diffidently.

"I'll take a barrel from you, then," the man said, paying him the price, and giving his address for their delivery.

"Say," a bystander asked, as the purchaser walked away, "how did you know those apples in the center of the barrel were so good?"

"A twinkle came into the old coddler's eye.

"O, that was one of my barrels," he said.

"Ladywear" a New Shop Term.

She was searching through a shop for that new device for womankind minus mauls—the corset cover buttoned down the back—when a new compound noun came to her ears. It was "ladywear." It appears this is the latest addition to the vernacular of the shops and under it saleswomen group all feminine habiliments of the lingerie order. "There is no doubt about it," said the searcher for a corset cover that was to give a transparent waist an excuse for being, "this, perhaps, long in the workshop where skirts and waists are made by the hundreds of thousands, will stick."

Few Dances in Ireland.

For many years there has been but little social intercourse among the Irish people. The priests, in their desire to preserve the proverbial Irish chastity, have held in check the too free association of the sexes. There are few social entertainments or dances among the peasantry, and the young people largely sit apart at church and at religious functions.

No Peace for Discoverers.

It is remarkable how few of the discoverers and conquerors of the new world died in peace. Columbus died of a broken heart. Balboa was disgracefully beheaded, Cortez was dishonored, Sir Walter Raleigh was beheaded, Pizarro was murdered, Ojeda died in poverty, Henry Hudson was left to the mercy of the Indians along the bay which he discovered.

SUBMARINE BELL TEST

Warnings in Fog and Storm Sent From Ocean Depths.

SIGNALS WERE HEARD MILES AWAY

Through the Telephone's Receiver the Thrub of an Unseen Steamship's Screw Could Be Detected—Device That Enables Listeners to Locate Lightships at a Distance.

To put the receiver of a telephone to your ear and hear the sonorous note of a warning bell come out of the sea; by the same means to hear the thrub of a steamship's screw when the steamship cannot be seen and by these sounds to drive a vessel through fog or darkness, avoiding collisions and reefs, acknowledging signals and making port as a skipper would in broad daylight, savors of the opening chapter of a novel by Jules Verne. Nevertheless these things can now be done, and they are made possible by the submarine telephone.

The signal is the invention of Professor Elsie Gray of Chicago and Arthur J. Mundy. It is controlled by the Submarine Signal company. Through the courtesy of the latter a representative of the New York Times witnessed a demonstration of submarine signaling on a recent afternoon at Sandy Hook.

A specially chartered tug took the party that had been invited to see the demonstration from Pier 6 to the Sandy Hook lightship, which was riding easily on an oily swell and the crew were idling on deck playing cards and checkers. The only sound that broke the stillness of the ocean was the melancholy tolling of a bell. One tried to trace the sound in vain. The big bell on deck was motionless. One of the men was asked where the sound came from. He pointed down into the sea.

"Submarine," said he.

"Pong! Pong!" was the sound that came from the depths of the ocean.

The captain of the lightship explained that this was the bell from which steamships fitted with the submarine telephone took their bearings. It was hung from the keel of the lightship, he said, and ships miles away, be the weather thick or clear, could hear it by telephone and know just where they were.

The telephone was shown later, but the bell was the first thing to be explained. Deep down in the sea it is operated by compressed air. A wheel turning in the engine room of the lightship marked off five seconds of silence, then a notch released enough compressed air to drive the tongue of the submarine bell. The ghostly note came out of the sea twice with an interval of a second and a half, then there was a lapse of five seconds. Again the double note sounded. Then there was a lapse of three seconds. The continued repetition of the bell notes with the alternate lapses of five and three seconds constituted a signal which to mariners spelled in the submarine signal code "Sandy Hook Light."

Although many ships are fitted with the telephone which receives the warning note of the submarine bell, the vessel used in the demonstration was a tug, in the wheelhouse of which there hung what looked like an ordinary telephone. The party returned to the tug to see the second and most important part of the invention. On the way from the lightship to the tug the carrying power of water was demonstrated by the fact that while the air did not carry the sound of the deep sea bell the melancholy notes came through the ears and the woodwork of the rowboat.

On board the tug full speed was ordered. The little craft traveled over a mile to the west of the lightship. When at last it came to a full stop absolute silence prevailed except for the voices of the passengers. The bell notes were lost, and the lightship itself was a little thing in the distance. Acting upon the suggestion of an official representing the signal company, the members of the party took turns at putting the telephone receiver to their ears. As clearly, though not so loudly as before, the sonorous bell pealed out of the sea. The thrub of the steamship Francesca's screw was also heard long before the vessel came in sight of the tug.

The submarine telephone is exactly like any other telephone so far as its general theory is concerned. It begins in the wheel house and ends in the bilges. Here, closely pressed against the shell of the vessel, is a transmitter case full of water, and into it is inserted a microphone. This microphone is a metal drum. The plates of the vessel form the diaphragm. The water transmits the sound to this. The importance of being able to trace a sound in darkness or fog has always been appreciated by mariners. Many a good ship has gone to pieces through the inability of the master to do it. The submarine signal settles this difficulty.

One each side of a vessel having the telephone aboard there is a receiver. A switch closes the port microphone and leaves the starboard open, as a man might listen with one ear shut and the other on the alert. Both receivers are opened and shut in turn until it is made clear from which side the sound comes the loudest. This part of the invention, the company hopes, will be much improved as time goes on, so that mariners will be able to find a sound with perfect accuracy. As it is, a vessel with the submarine signal apparatus need not approach within a mile of a lightship, a reef or land where the bell gives out its warning without being aware of it.

In March in a blinding snowstorm Captain Turner of the steamship Ivernia heard the Sandy Hook lightship's submarine bell through the telephone at a distance of ten miles.

GREAT CHESS MASTER DEAD

HARRY PILLSBURY EXPIRES OF APOPLEXY.

Had Taken Many Prizes in Tournaments and Displayed Great Ability at Blindfold Game.

Philadelphia, June 18.—Harry Nelson Pillsbury, the chess master, died here Sunday, of apoplexy, after an illness of many months. Pillsbury was born December 5, 1872, at Somerville, Mass., where the body will be taken, the funeral to be held there next Tuesday.

Pillsbury learned the rudiments of chess when he was 15 years old at the Deschanelles chess club in Boston. His first notable victory was a score of five to four in a match with John F. Barry of Boston in 1891. In 1893 he won the New York city tournament with a total of seven out of a possible nine, and in 1895 won first prize at the Hastings tournament against many of the strongest players of the world. This victory logically made him one of the quartette of the then most famous players named to compete at St. Petersburg—Lasker, Steinitz, Teichgrin and Pillsbury. His score with the world champion, Lasker, was 3½ to 2½. In 1897 Pillsbury won from Showalter the American chess championship, which he confirmed by a second match with Showalter in 1898. In all, Pillsbury played in 14 international chess tournaments and was a prize winner in all except at Cambridge Springs, Pa., in 1904, when he was ill. Pillsbury showed his chess genius not alone by match and tournament play. At blindfold chess it is said his record has never been equalled. At Moscow he played 22 games without sight of the boards, and at Philadelphia 20 games, which feat he repeated at Vienna.

God Start. That married woman who made a balloon ascension with her husband will now know how it feels to be blown up.

Couldn't See Him. An Ohio man tells of the sad case of a young fellow, the son of a wealthy Toledo manufacturer, who, against his father's wishes, insisted upon going to Chicago to make his way, whereas the parent desired that the son train himself in the Toledo business house.

At first the lad did very well in the larger city, but it was not very long before he was making urgent appeals to his father for financial assistance. To these the old gentleman, who had himself been trained in a hard school, turned a deaf ear.

Finally the desperate boy wired his father in these words: "You won't see me starve, will you?" The old man's reply came in the form of the following telegram:

"No, not at this distance." Then the boy decided to return to Toledo and go to work for his father. —Harper's Weekly.
